If you stop at arches, do the firey furnace tour. The rangers always have such good stories, and then there's Paul Bunyan's Underpants...

Paul...Bunyan's...do I really want to know?

...yes, of course I do.

iz jealous beyond belief. (want vacay!) I think the only thing that would make me more jealous is pictures of the hike suggested above.

(you know you want to make me even more jealous, right?)

Admit it. You're really a postcard photographer in real life, aren't you?

I would have framed it better if I were.

Hello from scenic Victorville!

nice? really?

squints

Possibly I've just never been to the good part of Victorville? (although I didn't think it was big enough for that)

That's what I was thinking.

Hey, isn't Astro Burger out there, or did it go away?

Well, you know, she is from Texas. :D (ducks)

As for Astro Burger, I dunno...

I have to admit I've mostly just passed though. I don't think I've ever even stopped there on my way to/from Vegas/points beyond, as Victorville isn't that far from my starting point/destination.

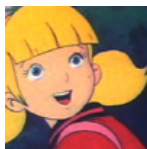

I do remember a funky burger place in I think Baker, though.

I dunno about the town, but the scenery is scenic.

That's what I figured you meant. It's just that that's what I'm trying to figure out - where is the scenery you found? I did a google image search to try to figure that out and I only got one pretty picture.

Although, I suspect a part of the problem is that even that one picture - I look at it and think "desert around/past Victorville" not Victorville itself. And also, that I've done that trip (past Victorville to Vegas) a couple of times. It's pretty in places, but not along a lot of it. And oh, god, when there is holiday traffic. headdesk (or is that headdashboard ?) You are just stuck there in nothing but gray and dirt for hours and hours and hours.

blah. ignore me, It may very well be pretty (around) Victorville, it's just that bad memories are getting in the way. :)

I don't remember what my search terms were. Possibly I went straight to Google Maps, which has lots of photos attached somehow.

Nope, it's not pretty. It's hot, brown, ugly, arid, and hot. Also hot.

(I used to live in Vegas.)

Pretty. Almost as beautifully desolate as the Nullabor. (Although this pic is more colourful, I'll grant.)
